SACRED COLLEGE TO DISCUSS GREAT INTERNATIONAL PROBLEMS

ROME, Nov. 23.—The consistency at which eighteen new Cardinals will be invested, including three from America, will be of the greatest significance internationally, aside from its ecclesiastical importance. Among the questions coming before the Sacred College will be President Taft's universal peace policy, the encroachments of "modernism," the spread of Catholicism in America, and the recent political events affecting the church in Europe.

Interior of Paragon Park at Nantasket, Showing Buildings Destroyed by Fire

This photograph was taken from "Mexico," near the entrance, which is at the left. The "Palm Garden" is in the distance, beyond the lagoon and tower.

BIG NANTASKET PLEASURE PARK SWEEPED BY FIRE

Paragon Park at Nantasket beach, one of the leading outdoor amusement resorts in New England, was swept by fire to-day. Before the flames were conquered a third of the ten acres of attractions had been destroyed.

The fire started at 10:15 on the roof of the large dancing pavilion. The tar paper caught from some unknown cause. The flames, fanned by a brisk ocean breeze, soon devoured the dance hall, spread to the motion picture house, leveled that, destroyed a small restaurant and adjoining booths and had almost lapped up the "flying horses" when the firemen got the upper hand.

LOSS ESTIMATED AT $100,000.

The fire was under control in less than thirty minutes. It was estimated at $100,000. It wiped out all of the buildings and all of the buildings on the ocean side, including that he saved the only $200,000 from the building.

Among the buildings destroyed was the new New Hotel, a twenty-room structure, which was the only building on the ocean side.

The central tower, 150 feet high, was not damaged. It was the only building on the ocean side.

MRS. DURFORD'S SUICIDE STORY

Mrs. Katharine Durford, widow of the Harvard graduate and author who killed himself by taking cyanide of potassium in the compartment of a car she had entered at the South Station, today declared in a statement to the AMERICAN that she herself had killed her husband before taking the poison.

Mrs. Durford says her husband declared they both must die, but she convinced that he was mentally unbalanced, reasoned with him and persuaded him to delay his threat.

No Divorce Proceedings.
Mrs. Durford's statement, in which she declares she saved the last institution divorce proceeding, is in full as follows:

Mr. Durford and I separated in 1907. I went to Boston. He knew I was there and followed me to hope of a reconciliation. I was very much surprised to see that the police authorities, on application of Boston officials, ordered his apprehension so that his safety might be determined.

I refused to live with him. He threatened my life and also to commit suicide. I was very much surprised to see that the police authorities, on application of Boston officials, ordered his apprehension so that his safety might be determined.

WOMAN'S RIGHT TO VOTE COSTS HER $10 FINE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—The right to ballot carried with it a $10 fine in the case of Mrs. Grace Hamilton, a society leader and daughter of John D. Spreckels. She appeared in court to answer a charge of driving an automobile in excess of the speed limit. Mrs. Hamilton admitted her violation of the ordinance, whereupon Police Judge Weber said:

"Under the old order of things this defendant would have been released with a reprimand, but now, by the laws of this State, woman has all the rights and privileges that are granted to the sterner sex, and by the same token she should be subjected to the same penalty. I fine the defendant $10."

Will Wed Our Schoolmate.
Back of the amusement made today of the engagement of Miss Marianne Stearns, a Vassar graduate of last June, to Carl F. Atwood, Brown '10, both of Watlington, is a romance which started when the two were classmates at the Watlington High School. So close has been set for the wedding, but it is expected by friends of the couple that it will be an event of June.

Miss Stearns is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Stearns of No. 203 Lincoln street, Watlington, and is a member of the Watlington High School. Her father is a Boston broker. Both she and Atwood graduated from Watlington High in 1908.

While at Brown Atwood took a prominent part in athletic and college athletics. Before that he played right halfback on the Watlington High School football team, which won the championship of Hampshire County in 1907 and 1908.

After their high school days and after college, they corresponded, during the summer months, and so that the announcement of the engagement came as no surprise to their friends.

SOME STORES IN BOSTON may have stocks more pretentious in scope and more imposing in cost, but no other store in this city. Shoppers come here day after day, having learned by actual experience that, no matter what class of merchandise is desired, from the cheapest article to the most expensive, it can be obtained here—quality compared with quality—at prices lower than elsewhere. On Friday our regular low cash prices are made materially lower, as thousands of patrons know.

FLIGHT OF CHAPMAN TO KING, STIRS ALL ENGLAND

(LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Rev. F. F. Farrer, former chaplain to King George and Queen Mary, and now chaplain to the Duke of Devonshire, who has fled England to the United States, following his expulsion from the royal household, is reported to have sailed for the United States today, leaving his wife and two children in the hands of the authorities. The flight of the Rev. Farrer, who has been in the United States for some time, is reported to have been the result of a scandal that broke out in London last week. The scandal was caused by the fact that Farrer had been found guilty of having had an affair with a woman who was the wife of a member of the royal household. Farrer is reported to have been in the United States for some time, and is now reported to have sailed for the United States today.

The Truck that Blazed the Trail

THE Packard three-ton truck, which crossed the continent in 46 1-2 days, is on exhibition at our establishment and on the streets with all the picturesque equipment that figured in its remarkable journey. A member of the crew which piloted the truck will tell you about it.

The truck left New York July 8 and arrived in San Francisco August 24. It carried a three-ton load all the way. It was the first heavy duty motor vehicle to complete this trip under its own power and it went from coast to coast without a single replacement.

The journey is one that has been accomplished by very few automobiles. The venture has been regarded as virtually out of the question for a heavy truck. The ease with which it was accomplished by the Packard shows the sturdiness and capability of Packard construction under every conceivable condition of hauling.

Packard trucks and Packard cars are built to surmount difficulties much greater than they encounter in actual service. Their margin of efficiency is your margin of safety.

Come and see the first trans-continental truck.

Now all is changed. He can make his selections from the best and then buy the same top prices for the same on credit for just the same cash price that the cash-paying buyer would.

For example, for instance, a woman pays $10.00 for a coat, skirt, hat, including almost all. She refuses to buy any of the big department or dry goods stores, she goes out to see and so, a big quantity of goods is sold, giving a cash. All she has to do is to come to the PEOPLES CREDIT CO.

We give her a ORDER CHECK for a month or a year, for the amount, and she uses it at her store, or any cash. This is the reason what she really gets the best price. Her price is a whole lot cash to pay her, and she has the privilege of paying for it later, and the more she pays, the less she has to pay. The great satisfaction of shopping for the best goods, and the cash price, is to get at a regular cash store, and the cash store is also used as a credit store.
It is not the last, it is going to be the end of the end of the end of the entirety of the cash-paying, the constant use, the best of goods.

Always a Baby

If the baby is treated right, the floors always look as if they had been swept with a hasty glance, and if the baby is the first of a number, it is grown up at ten, and if it is the last it is still considered a baby at sixty-five.

If it gets a toy balloon, its possession means two weeps: A weep to get it, and a weep a few minutes later when it blows up, and all through life its joys are attended this way.

When the baby cries, its mother doesn't scold. She looks it over for offending pins and waist bands that pinch, and thus excuse for tears and temper attends no one over the age of five. There is always some one to pull the baby back from the fire to keep it from burning itself. There is always some one tempting it to play with fire when it is grown.

A man never knows how small his house is until the baby screams, nor how large until the baby is dead.

Ask a baby what its name is, and its mother will wipe its nose and say, "Tell the gentleman." Every time someone looks at its mother is reminded that it is time to wipe its nose. Therefore don't look at the baby.

The father comes home in great excitement to tell his wife his rich uncle has called. "Oh, how will she tell me!"

you know, I think the baby is looking more like you." He tells her of a champagne in the map of the world, and she replies, "The baby hasn't cried once to-day," and "His delight in an erection is met with a eulogy on baby's new food."

As these things and more come to pass when there arrives in a home His Majesty the Baby.

There Are No Styles in Mother Instinct

Old Fashioned or New Fashioned, the Woman who Brings
Children Into the World May Be Trusted to Make Them
Good Citizens—If It Is Within Her Power.

Professor Charles Zuehlke, who used to teach sociology in the University of Chicago, has been telling college girls that the "old-fashioned" mother is out of date and useless.

A distinguished New York editor has been scolding "new-fashioned" mothers because they spend too much time playing bridge and studying "isms" and not enough time rocking the cradle and darning stockings.

All of which is interesting and likely to excite bitter controversy, but is NOT important.

The mother of Abraham Lincoln knew nothing whatever of Isms and never heard of bridge, yet she proved a most excellent mother—a mother whose fame will go down through history beside that of her great son.

The mother of some future President of the United States may be distinguished socially—she may be the possessor of two or three college degrees, and acquainted with every new movement in which people are interested, and at the same time prove as worthy to bring up a great American as the woman who still lives in a log cabin and has difficulty writing anything more than her own name.

There are no styles in mother instinct. The woman who has borne children may be trusted to make good citizens of them—if it lies within her power.

With every new life is born a mother love that never wavers nor dies. The woman who works over a steaming wash tub for ten hours a day to support her babies loves them, of course. But so does the woman who speaks from the platform of a suffragist meeting love the children that she has borne.

Cases of unnatural fathers are common enough—cases of neglectful fathers are far too common. Cases of neglectful mothers are rare—of unnatural mothers almost unheard of.

The learned editor who fears that the pursuit of modern study, the following of modern ideas is going to make one particle of difference in the devotion of mothers to their children is unduly pessimistic. Even if she wanted to, no mother could help loving her child—could knowingly stand in the way of its advancement or deliberately entrust it to unworthy hands.

It is important for women who are responsible for future citizens to know as much as they can—be acquainted with the progress of the world, to have ideas and ideals. If they are idle, if they are ignorant, the children's welfare will suffer. Let their critics make the maddest followers of fashion among them understand that the children are growing up wrong and a sudden reformation will be effected. But never believe for an instant that the mother love will atrophy, for it is as eternal as creation.

As for Professor Zuehlke, we believe he is needlessly severe on what he calls the "old-fashioned" mother. No woman ever born into the world is "old fashioned" if any opportunity to be anything else is open to her.

Women absorb and assimilate new ideas far more rapidly than men. Doctors and nurses and mothers quick to learn hygiene—eager to seize any means of better protecting the lives and the health of their babies.

Give all mothers a chance to know the best means of caring for her children and there will be no "old-fashioned" mothers for college professors to feel sorry about.

Unhappily, it is still necessary for many women to support their own children by day's work. Many of them could not, if they would, attend social enlightenment gatherings or lectures on literature or art, or even physiology.

The "home-loving" woman likes an opportunity to leave her home once in a while as well as the business woman. She knows that an occasional change of scene—a chance now and then to think about something besides what she is going to have for dinner—makes her more cheerful and a better companion to her children. And for that very reason she is eager NOT to be a home-keeping woman forever.

There are a great many wrongs in the world which college professors and sociologists have not corrected.

One of them is the child labor evil; another is the state of public conscience that will permit mothers to work to support their families—to break down their health—and deprive themselves of their happiness that the babies they have brought into the world may be kept alive.

But mother-love is secure. It has always existed, it will always exist. Whether a woman is rich or poor, whether her life takes her into society or chains her to a sewing machine, if she is a mother she will, with neither scolding nor prompting, give to her children all the devotion, all the protection, that is hers to give.

Massachusetts Savings Bank Insurance
By Alice Harriet Grady

Miss Grady is financial secretary of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League. Her career, dedicated to the League, were read for the first time at a meeting of the Rockland and North Abington policy holders last evening.

The County where the Pilgrim Fathers labored for the Right,
And the love for Independence fought its way into the Light,
Comes new call to Independence—the righting of a wrong:
If you listen you can hear it—ringing clear, and loud, and long:
Ringing low beneath their burden, men and women toiled and wept,
And the life insurance agent night and day was kept.
What matter if the laboring man had nothing fit to eat?
The Life Insurance President must have bread and meat!
What matter if the rent day came, and naught wherewith to pay?
For father's out of work, you see, and mother's ill to-day?
The Life Insurance premium—that surely must be paid—
Or else your policy is lapsed, the agent sternly said.
And so from weary week to week, and weary year on year,
Our life insurance savings to New York were from here.
To build a marble palace great, with towers tall and grand,
In which to gather toll from those who "didn't understand!"
But the call to Freedom sounded, ringing out from Beacon Hill—
The Governor has signed the Savings Bank Insurance Bill!
From Plymouth County echoed an answer sweet and clear—
"You'll find the love of Freedom still strongly anchored here!"
Our banks are for the people, and we'll follow where they lead—
To conserve the people's savings—supply a public need.
So with patience and with courage they have pioneered the way
In a form of public service that has surely come to stay.
And from Western Massachusetts we have heard a glad refrain—
"Please let the Berkshire County Bank be combined with the bank.
We recognize your spirit, and we're grateful for your bounty.
But we want our Berkshire savings conserved in Berkshire County!"
And so the East and Western folk joined hands in purpose strong:
To keep our hard-earned savings right where they belong—
In institutions guarded by a law so wisely made.
That full value must be given for every dollar paid.
The message springs from man to man—the word is passed along,
And now the "Army of the Free" is full five thousand strong.
So day by day the ranks are filled from those who "understand,"
Till the time shall come when victory's ours, and Freedom guards our hand!

Alice Harriet Grady

Sensible Co-operation

By DR. EDWIN F. BOWERS

ONE hundred thousand employees of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad are to attempt to unite in operating a chain of stores in which the necessities of life will be sold to the members at lowest possible rates. It is to be the Palmer Co-operative Association, after its founder, Frank A. Palmer.

Mr. Louis D. Brandeis, the Boston lawyer—who knows more about economics and scientific railroad management than all the railroad managers in the country rolled into one—is the legal guide and mentor of the new enterprise.

This company aims to reduce the cost of living by eliminating every possible item of profit.

For almost a half a century the South Coast Co-operative Society and its great English branch have been doing this. The present company is the largest business enterprise in the world. It has hundreds of thousands of members, thousands of stores, fleets of oceanic ships, baking ovens, coal mines, tea, coffee, rice and cotton plantations, wheat, oats and arable land, and a vast network of retail stores.

From farm and orchard, great cattle ranges on the Argentine pampas, producing leather—which is worked into shoes, coats, trunks, etc.—their own sheep—meats, tallow, horns and valuable products. The head of the business is a woman called Mrs. I. B. B. is short, everything that a human being requires in the way of food, clothes, drink, medicine, tools or luxuries, is made co-operatively by the company, and sold to its members at what practically amounts to cost price.

It works in this manner. Any-one may become a member by purchasing one share of stock. All purchases are entered up, and the books are balanced periodically, a pro rata of the profits of the business being credited to the individual—based upon the amount of his purchases. In other words, he has the profits of all the articles which he or his family have consumed, minus his pro rata share of the cost of doing business.

The individual sum of two cents per pound on sugar while Mr. I. B. B.'s large little gang of men and women perils delivery up of every time we buy a pound of sugar is saved by these thirty Bows and Bows. The largest which we contribute, through Mr. I. B. B. and his gang, to the building of a separate research laboratory, and the purchase of a new establishment—should and practically they are equipped by.

How the Plan Works
The secret is that such an obvious remedy was not sought a decade ago, and particularly as it entailed no working out of unknown problems, no learning of paths through virgin forests.

The South Coast co-operative societies had solved this question years ago, and demonstrated the practicality of its solution.

The consumer was simply adopting that method of consolidation, elimination of waste, concentration of forces, economy of effort and avoidance of duplication, which has been found so scientific, practical, and natural by the co-operative movement in the form of co-operative business, known as the Co-operative movement.

Let us hope, however, that this membership be not restricted to railroad employees, but be freely offered any and all who care to avail themselves of this simple, practical, sensible plan of saving.

Isn't he selfish, paragon of the Palmer Co-operative Association? You have a splendid thing. Share it with your friends.

Our One Necessity

By CHESTER FIRKINS

A FLAT may lack a kitchen—
A dining room, a hall;
The HIGHEST apartment etiquette
Prescribes no rooms at all.
For workmen or soldiers.

There's little—save the lease;
Yet never have I seen a flat
Without a mantelpiece.

A mantel is a lovely thing—
So very useful, too!
It fits so well the only thing
Where bookcases would do.

It may be black as Poe's old cat,
Or white as paper green;
But, green or purple, every flat
MUST have a mantel-piece.

Observe the bright cast-iron plate
Between the mantel-shelf and
THAT hides an imitation grate—
A treasure in itself!

But! Didn't a warmer burning grate
Be waiting the demise
Of those who never built a flat
Without a mantel-piece.
